Hi David,

Hope your week is going well!

Please find attached our quick overview of the potential mural project in Thames Centre. Essentially, we outline our fee as curators, the cost to have professional artists develop concept designs, and then the steps toward production of the actual murals. With this approach, we are very confident that we can deliver excellent results over the next 12-18 months ...

We always mention that there is such a thing as a bad mural, and once that is painted, the community is stuck with that result for a long time. Our view is that we only want to be involved in projects where the necessary investment is made to get the great results that we know communities really want ... here is a link that highlights some of our past work.

Please let me know if you have any questions! If this looks good, we would be happy to move forward right away ...

Thanks,

Andrew
